Editorial OF THE DAY

WHAT DOES THIS INDICATE?

Whenever there is a fire in Lindsay it is customary for the Police Department to send representatives to the scene of the fire, or may not be wise in the light of a report contained in the Ontario Fire Marshal's "Quarterly Bulletin". Here is the report, and even in these days of radio communication, it will be conceded that it provides food for thought.

Fire Alarm Takes Away Police

An Associated Press item dated December 7, 1935, from Lake Geneva, Wisconsin, shows in real life how a small bank robber gets the police department out of the town where he wants to stage a bank robbery in a town where the police have five department outposts. The item deals with a gunman with a fair deal of experience in the bank robbery business. The National Bank to town today, locked them in a vault one by one, and escaped with a packing box of currency estimated at more than $100,000. As other employees fled, the gunman directed them into a vault used for storing records. While waiting, he disconnected all but one telephone, and used that to turn in a false fire alarm, giving an address at the other end of the street. Customarily, Lake Geneva police accompany the fire department on calls.

Others Say...

THE ONTARIO ECONOMIC SCENE

The Bank of Montreal's "Business Review" presents the following informative synopsis of the economic conditions in the Province of Ontario.

"Wholesale and retail trade has been comparatively quiet following the holiday season but December sales surpassed all previous records. A steady demand for merchandise was in evidence. Other employees fled, the gunman directed them into a vault used for storing records. While waiting, he disconnected all but one telephone, and used that to turn in a false fire alarm, giving an address at the other end of the street. Customarily, Lake Geneva police accompany the fire department on calls."

POLITE BUT FIRM

There is a story about a London police officer who was asked what he would do if somebody pulled a gun on him.

"I would go up to him," he said, "and I would say: 'I'm sorry, sir, but you'll have to hand that gun over and come along with me.'"

The story is apocryphal, of course. And yet anyone acquainted with the London police would not be surprised if the London policeman, and with the respect that it commands, will detect an underlying grain of truth.

While highly-trained aerodynamics experts work in top secrecy on the joint U.S. Air Force-Army Canada "Project V", to develop a saucer-shaped, vertically-rising jet aircraft, two Vancouver aircraft builders have already developed a propeller-driven saucer that really flies. Built in the secrecy of a basement work-shop by Glen Holm (left) and Jack Barnes, the Vancouver Gas Model Club, the miniature saucer is 30 inches in diameter, is powered by a 4 h.p. engine capable of speeds up to 60 m.p.h. Their next project: to build a jet-powered model to crack the model aircraft speed record of 160 mph.

Vancouver B.C. Prove Saucers Can Fly!

In spite of U.S. Air Force's exhaustive 361-page report which debunks flying saucer sightings as being optical illusions, meteors, or conventional aircraft, Vancouverites can point to the "saucer" as being the real thing. Slick design gives this model better performance, increased maneuverability.

Saucer designers, Glen Holm (lft.) and Jack Barnes, prepare model for test flight. Saucer performs in take-off, climb, dives and landings at the end of 15-foot spread of wire. Knowledge of flight gained through building dozens of flying models helped Holm and Barnes put their saucer theory to practice.

Club, formed in 1935, today has over 50 members interested in building flying models powered by miniature gas engines. Most work in basement shops and time involved might be an hour building simple glider to 300 hours on complex, radio-controlled gas model.

Jack Barnes trims tiny tank of 4 h.p. engine which powers the model. Each member of Vancouver Gas Model Club usually has 5 machines ready for the air, spends an average of $150 annually on his hobby. Miniature engines cost from $6.00 up to $30.00 for more elaborate jet models.

Long hours of testing and building went into producing the saucer. Model, built at cost of $10.00, is nylon covered, tailored to fit around available engine. Sixty-mile per hour speed is considered exceptionally fine for model as large as the 30-inch saucer.

SHORT STORY Ten Minutes Late

by AGNE V. BOWMAN

"The evening was dark when at 11 o'clock Fred Simpson Peterson arrived at the signal box for duty. "Evening, Hansen! Any news?" Peterson took off his cap and coat. "They say Sivertsen's out." So that was it Sivertsen had been in a state but Peterson had had to report him. Sivertsen had been given year in jail. He had threatened to get revenge.

"Nothing else to report, Hansen?" Right cars from the brick works. There was no freight in line. They're on line No. 3 waiting to be picked up by the early morning freight. That meant no through trains on line No. 2."

Wastes had gone. Peterson was done. Keep calm, he told himself. He'd be in the office and beyond to read the paper. The night express was due to pass at 11:27; at about 11:30 it would be signalled through from the junction.

He spoke his head to glance at the clock and stared sideways into the middle of a window. He felt his body jerk. Behind him, came Sivertsen's ugly groan. "Put your hand behind you," Peterson could feel his hands being clutched at the back of the chair. Suddenly the phone rang. Sivertsen lifted the receiver. "Hello! — all clear!" he said. The word was the night express was passing the junction.

"I am, you still have the bad habit of parking cars on line No. 2," grunted the Librarian. He switched the main line over to line No. 2 and returned the signal.

PETERSEN shrank in terror. Sivertsen said: "What'll happen when the fast express hits those cars? And what'll happen to the man responsible? Perhaps you'll try to convince the prosecution that you're not guilty? That I was there with a knife and cut you loose and you're not guilty? The moment it happens!"

Sivertsen lit a cigarette. "The cops are going down to see if the cars are properly braked. Then I'll work better."

Peteresen was deadly pale. He was speechless. "What are you glaring at?" sneered Sivertsen. "What a smoke to steady your nerves a bit, so that it'll be the cigarette you light Peterson's mouth. He lit and was Peterson pulled automatically at the cigarette. About for light. Lines, there was no one near.

Four feet away from him was the signal lever. Move it and the express would be saved. But he could not move his hands. He knew that 50 yards away two green lights were signalling all clear. And 500 yards further on was another signal indicating there was no danger. 11:44 Sivertsen had received the union's news of the express at its time of arrival.

Peteresen could feel his hands being pulled to the chair. Peterson tried to bend forward. The signal lever around his wrist. Now with his cigarette he could nearly reach it. He crossed his knees. The cigarette was half-burned. He puffed and the glow increased. He pressed it against the rope with desperate energy, drew deeply. He heard the faint crackling sound as the strands of the rope broke. But he heard no sound now, far away, the whistle of the express.

With all his might he stretched his knees and the rope broke. He could stand upright and he feverishly began to bend his hands. A glint of light from the window showed him the lights of the approaching train. Dragging the chair with him he threw himself on the signal lever and changed it to red. But the engine was already passing under it and the signal driver noticed nothing.

But Ask How Lindsay Keeps Swimming Pool Open, Paying, Sundays

Members of the Council of the Village of Omemee have passed a resolution whereby in the future there will be no more Sunday sporting activities permitted, including hockey, baseball, and other games. Before the decision was reached a question was asked about Sunday sports at Lindsay which went unanswered.

Reverend L. W. McKean said that the resolution came about because of the recent success and the fact that the village is not in the position to pay for the maintenance of the swimming pool. JUMPETH ON THE JOB.

Consider the editor. He wears purple and fine linen. His abode is amongst the mansions of the rich. His wife has her limousine and his first-born sports a racing car that can hit her up to forty ft.

Lo! All the people bracket their backs to hand him money. A child is born unto the wife of a merchant in the bazaar. The physician getseth on gold pinkeys. The editor writes a stick and a half and tellects the multitude that the child trippeth the beam at nine pounds. Yes, he leith even as a centurian. And the proud father greth him a Cresent.

Behold, the young one groweth up and gradueth. And the editor putteth him in his paper a well earned. Yea, a peach of a notice. He tellects of the wisdom of the young woman, and of her excellent countenance. And the dressmaker getteth two score and four iron men. And the editor getteth a note of thanks from the S.G.O.

The daughter goeth on a journey, and the editor throweth himself on the story of the farewell party. It runneth a column solid. And the fair one remembereth him from afar off with a picture postal card that costeth six for a june.

Behold, she returneth, and the youth of the city fall down and worship. She picketh one and lo, she picketh a lemon. But the editor calleth him one of our most promising young men and getteth away with it. And they send unto him to bid the wedding feast and behold, the bride are fashioned by Miss Gummy Haw-bunk, in a far city.

Flowery and long is the wedding notice which editor printeth. The minister getteth ten bones. The groom standeth the editor off for a twelve-month suscription.

All flesh is grass and in time the wife is gathered unto the site. The minister getteth a bit. The editor printeth a death notice, two columns of obituary, three lodge notices, a cubit of poetry and a card of thanks. And he forgetteth to read proof on the head, and the darning thing cometh out: "Gone to Her Last Roasting Place."

And all that are akin to the deceased jumpeeth on the editor with exceding great jumps. And they pulsteth but their aids and candlesticks their subscriptions, and they swing the hammer unto the third and fourth generations.

And where he getteth the wrong name in an election ad he sure catcheth it!

Canst thou beat it?

WHEN THE S P FLOWS

It won't be long now before the sap begins to rise in the sugar maples and - regardless of anyone's opinion about where the best sugar originates - the first sap flow is as happy an event as February ever offers. It means that March is coming, and the equinox, and the buds and the leaves and spring, itself. It means that winter has an ending. And all the ice on the river, all the cold in the thermometer can't check it when the time comes.

We see the sun rising a bit earlier, setting each day a bit later, and we know the old earth is turning as usual, on its axis and in its orbit. We see the moon following its phases. We see the pines and the hemlocks on the rocky hillside, shrugging off the snow and shivering grouse and chickadees. Things are in order, and we know it. But it isn't until the sap begins to rise, that we really feel it. There is the substance of knowledge, but there is the essence of belief which must rise from inside; it, too, has its season.

You have to be sick to know you will recover. You have to be cold to appreciate the warmth. Maybe you can't beat believe in the change that is spring when you are most in need of it. Certainly there are few enough signs of spring when the sap begins to move. But something happens down at the roots and there is the response. Snow and ice and sleet and biting cold, and in their midst comes a warm day and there is sap. And you know that winter's days are numbered. It is as simple as that. You know. And for the rest of the look ahead, confident. Sap rises and hopes becomes certainty.

NOTICE

YOUR MOTOR CARS AND TRUCKS CAN NOW BE DRIVEN 15,000 MILES OR MORE BEFORE NEEDING AN OIL CHANGE!

POS-MET OIL DRAIN PLUG

The above may seem to you to be an astonishing statement—but it is a fact, and is the result of a development by THE NATIONAL RESEARCH COUNCIL the organization set up by The Government of Canada to assist industry in Scientific Research.

Critically conducted tests have shown that motor cars in which a positive metal alloy is installed in the crank case can now be operated in any weather for upwards of 15,000 miles of drive without need for oil change in the oil. In addition, oil deterioration occurs so slowly that following a drain oil filling of the crank case, the oil will give fully effective service to at least the greatly extended degree. This is achieved by using a special oil drain plug which contains a positive metal alloy insert.

In one major test on a fleet of 11 TAXI CABS—the experience was general throughout the whole fleet, that the points of oil change were running at from 15,000 to 20,000 miles of operation.

"Charm" Schools a $2 Million Business

This Toronto woman, undergoing facial transformation, is availing herself of the services of a unique Canadian industry devoted to women in pursuit of pulchritude. In addition to courses in make-up, Canadian charm schools also feature classes in figure-slimming, wardrobe, voice-training and proper carriage.

Tape recording of voice is used in this Toronto charm school to instruct students in breath control, resonance and pitch, as aids to developing an attractive voice. This particular glamour school last year trained some 1,000 students, including 200 teen-agers, 500 working girls, and 100 housewives.

Poise and proper carriage, important social as well as modelling assets, are an integral part of charm school training. Teen-age students watch as teacher Lois Pison (here) "Miss By-Lane of '51," puts students through paces in simulated runway work. Cost of general courses in commercial schools averages $80.00.

Advice on clothing and accessories, designed to suit individual pose and personality, are given these beginning students. A tips on use of fabric and color, design, employment of accessories, prove available to both housewives and models taking course. Here, instructor Jennie's Mallinson advises on millinery styles.

Sparked by a phenomenal boom in beauty since the war's end, Canadian "charm" schools are today a thriving $2 million dollar business, reaching glamour seekers of make-up, proper carriage and wardrobe to potential career models and housewives alike. So great is the self-improvement trend that, in the Toronto area alone, some 8,000 women last year spent $400,000 on commercial and YWCA courses designed to make them prettier on the fashion runway or in the kitchen. "Riding bicycle", these students take figure-slimming exercises under supervision of instructors-model Filida Land. Figure streamlining course is aimed at correcting figure defects brought about by insufficient exercise, poor posture and wrong diet. Ultimate goal: the ideal symmetry of a perfect 34"-24"-34".

Lindsay, Regatta, following their scoring records at the Keweenaw Arena last evening when they defeated a short-handed Port Hope team 14-3.

"Of course I've got the MOH who is the last person I'd want to hear things, but I've much doubt the report."

Twenty-four Quebec Canoe Crews Started Contest But Only 16 Finished

Five brothers from Le Dorant, near Quebec, battled a 40-mile wind and dodged ice floes to capture the hazardous annual Quebec canoe race, for the second straight year. The pilot was Leguiri Lacasse with Joseph Paul Noel and Anselme as crew. They covered the 3½ mile course in 51 minutes and 36 seconds. The race, from Quebec to Lewis, was 1½ miles longer than the 1955 event. No aer-ion accidents were reported although several paddlers fell into the frigid water when the ice broke. Only 16 of the original 24 teams completed the course as broken ice, a snowstorm, swift currents combined to force crews to drop out. First place in the amateur competition went to G. Normand's squad.

Thieves Break Into Jewelry Store Here

Chief Hunter Checking With City Authorities, Say Suspects Identified

Gas Pump Is Smashed, Gas Stolen

Police Tuesday night were advised of the theft of about 10 gallons of gasoline from the premises of Master Peds Inc. 8201 St. Clair.

About eight a.m. a report was made to the police office that the theft, which was investigated by Chief John Egan and P. C. Ralph Fountain, it was learned that something during the night a forced entry had been made into a storage shed, where there was located a gas pump.

Police say that it would appear that the thief had entered the building through a window and later forced open a door. A lockpick was used to get into the building, the police say, and it is believed that the thief, who was a black man, was dressed in a dark suit and a hat. It was reported by police that any break which may have been made was obliterated by the falling snow, therefore they did not know as to whether a vehicle had been driven

Information had come to the attention of "The Post," which has partially been confirmed by police in connection with another robbery in London on Friday, which may have some connections with a marauder ring in the Toronto region.

Chief Hunter has corroborated a report that the gas theft would be the opportunity to check some further information, and also some investigation in the city of Toronto and Hamilton.

Friday, a man had attempted to set a gas of similar description as the stolen one, in Robinson, had been reported as successful. The thief, who was a black man, was dressed in a dark suit and a hat. It was reported by police that any break which may have been made was obliterated by the falling snow, therefore they did not know as to whether a vehicle had been driven

Holes all over the place

Thieves have struck again in London for the fourth time in about a week. Last night they broke into the garage of Master Peds Ltd. and stole a quantity of gasoline. A week ago they broke into Eaton's London store and during the week a jewellery shop was visited by shop-lifters who got away with a quantity of watches. Another London store is reported to have had a gas stolen. The above pictures show the mess left by the luckless intruders at Eaton's. They gouged out the hole in the wall (left) in the belief that the vault lay just beyond. "To their chagrin they discovered a toilet. Constable Ralph Potts (center) points to a brace and bit which was used to drill through the floor (right) again in the hopes that the vault and their sought-after loot lay just beyond. It did not. -- well beyond. Despite what appears to have been long hours of foot intruders are reported to have left empty-handed.

Canadian history, who were almost forgotten because "history neglected to preserve their stories. This is a great Canadian tradition that is little known."

Admiral Lloyd Pound said that if possibly Canada did not have the history to tell these men, to which they are serving here, to which they are serving here, to which they are serving here.

"People don't realize the rewards which come to a man for becoming a public servant. This rewards are given in the form of honor and respect, but in personal gratification and satisfaction."

"When you come to the end of the road in public service, no dividend is greater than realizing you have done some little thing for your fellow-man."

Editorial

RABIES WILL BE AROUND FOR AWHILE

As a result to the free rabies vaccination clinic being held in Lindsay's Armory during the past two days, concluding Tuesday night, has been encouraging to officials charged with protecting animal health. There have been several latecoming things emerge from the outbreak of rabies in the district and the subsequent establishment of vaccination clinics. Among these is the fact that this is not a short term outbreak. According to reports coming from the health department, the direction of the federal Dept. of Agriculture, Health of Animals Division, the disease has now become so widespread that it is not likely it will be eradicated in the foreseeable future. It is for this reason that the public is cautioned to report outward incidents among wildlife to game officials so that every case or suspected case of rabies is brought to their attention and may be dealt with most expeditiously. In other words this is likely to be something with which we will have to live for a long, long time and only by eternal vigilance (not to be confused with useless wariness to achieve nothing) can we hope to keep it from spreading to domestic animals with the attendant danger to human beings. In this connection, officials of the game and hunters shooting foxes do not leave them exposed to other animals or fail to prey on. "If you aren't going to dispose of them completely, leave them alone and not your nearest game warden, they urge.

Another important point which dog and other pet owners are urged to remember is that the vaccine given doesn't make it safe for these animals to run at large. It takes three weeks for the vaccine to build up and even then supervision is urged in the interests of minimizing the danger of spreading the disease. As a result, as we now have a rabies epidemic in the game headway first in the barren Arctic wastes a few years ago when it was discovered that a strange malady was decimating the fox population. At that time it was believed that the disease was a new one, but subsequent investigations led authorities to property identify it as "rabies."

The disease now seems to be making considerable headway in Durham, Victoria and Peterborough County. For the moment no cases have been reported from either Hamilton or Ontario Counties although officials are suspicious that there are a few cases in the latter. We believe this is a timely reminder that municipalities should do two things: (1) rigidly enforce license regulations and bylaws governing dogs and (2) make sure that all dogs are properly vaccinated and not allowed to take care of strays. This is not to suggest that a hardship be worked on either dogs or owners, but simply that the general public welfare be protected by assuring the responsibility retained in owning a dog is properly assumed.

It is useless to fight fire in one corner of a building while it spreads in another and in another corner. If the battle to curb the spread of rabies is to be won, it must be attacked on every front.

Fire Destroys Cabin Trailer; 2150 Feet of Hose Strung, Still Didn't Reach Scene

A fire which broke out about eight p.m. Thursday night, completely destroyed a small cabin trailer occupied by Mr. Howard Barker, Logie Street. Cause of the fire was not immediately known by the fire department officials.

An almost record amount of fire hose was laid by the firefighters . . . 2150 feet of two-and-a-half inch hose was connected to the sole hydrant at Maryknoll, and extended along Logie St. for a considerable distance past the overleaked CNR bridge.

The nearly half mile of hose still did not reach the fire scene, but Chief Alex Wylie pointed out that if it had, been found necessary, the hose could have been used.

MP Acks Government If Sunderland P.O. Has Buglar Alarm

The Sunderland Post Office is back in the news, again but this time it's a different kind. The post office, in this village 20 miles or so to the west of London, has been robbed numerous times in recent years and this incident is being drawn to the attention of the Government.

Earlier this week, Sydney W. Hodgson, M.P. for the riding, asked the government what they were doing to bring the robbery to a halt or at least thwart them. Here is how Hodgson records the members' reply and the answer he received.

POST OFFICE DEPARTMENT Inquiry As To Protection of Post Office At Sunderland On the orders of Mr. Mr. C. W. Hodgson (Victoria, Ont.): I should like to direct a question to the Postmaster General with regard to a question I asked a week ago about the Sunderland post office being a question of the robbery of the post office in a couple of years. Has the department installed a telephone or a burglar alarm in that office?

Mr. Rogers (Postmaster General): I have not the detailed information. I will endeavor to get it for you and know exactly what I can tell you. The member referred to is a matter of fact, I read the question in Hansard and he has only asked it to a part of the western Ontario without mentioning the name.

Mr. Hodgson: It is at Sunderland, Ontario.

The news from the sunny south today and it comes from a man who is known to many people in the district and one who knows how to write a really newsy letter.

When I was in Florida, I was told that there was a situation involving a man alleged to have drawn a knife on a Lindsay man.

The fact reporter of the story, which came to light Friday morning, and attributed to a acquaintance of one of the clerks, and later found to be incorrect, was as follows:

A man allegedly came into a Kmart shop in the morning, went out, came back in again. He was making a purchase. The clerk told him that the store was closed.

Chief Skitch says that the description of the suspected couple is not far from the truth. The couple was not found to be missing for 10 minutes after the couple had been seen.

When police arrived, the man was taken to the police station. Chief Skitch reported later that the man had been arrested.

Secretary E. N. Gregory commented that the present situation had resulted in one benefit to the patients — service they have received at the hospital. Dr. R. M. Parker, chief of the medical staff, agreed, but said the figures for salaries and wages were almost an argument for the establishment of a school for certified nursing assistants at the hospital.

The board also endorsed a vote of appreciation to nursing superintendent Jean Dayman for her work since taking office.

Abitibi Beaver Pay Dividends

In the sprawling Abitibi Beaver Preserve of Northern Quebec, two Huronain River Indian trappers now show back to their camp carrying trapped beaver. Each trapper is allotted an annual quota which he is permitted to crop from his area, ranging from 20 to 100 animals.

Under watchful eye of her son, the wife of an Indian trapper kills beaver. In line with conservation program, federal and provincial biologists, through special beaver school at Lennoxville, Que., are studying the problem of beaver diseases, chief of which are tularemia and pseudo-tuberculosis.

Indian trapper lowers beaver trap into basin hole. Working in co-operation with Quebec's Fish and Game officials, fur development experts from the Federal Indian Affairs branch conduct annual beaver census to determine how many beaver can be taken from each lodge.

Leg holes of beaver pelts stretched on drying rack are seen up by wife of a Brindley Lake, P.Q., trapper. Close to a quarter of million beaver pelts, with an average value of $100.00, are taken yearly from the beaver preserves of Quebec, Saskatchewan, Manitoba and Ontario.

ANNUAL RED CROSS CAMPAIGN

During the month of March all across the North American Continent the Annual Appeal for Red Cross funds is made to raise money for the people of the world. Locally, Provincially, Nationally and Internationally we are on unintermitted - in Peace or War.

In times of War there is no end to the calls upon the Red Cross and it is also true that in times of Peace there is no end to the calls upon the people of the world. The Red Cross, and those who are in need of distress due to poverty, fire, earthquake, flood, famine or other causes.

The last two years have seen hardships on our own Continent resulting in millions of dollars worth of damage and thousands upon thousands of people driven out of their homes.

We, in this area, have been singularly blessed and in a spirit of Thanksgiving and willingness to assume a share of our brotherhood, we are organizing to lead the good people of Victoria County outside of Lindsay where we are affiliated with the Community Chest to make their annual contribution by mail.

This is being done to save the people in the County the cost of canvassing and we hope that all will make their contribution in the advertised envelope which will receive by mail and then "do your bit" towards this great cause and save your neighbour the necessity of calling you.

We are counting on you, and every one of you. If, for any reason, you do not receive a letter please remit your contribution to—

Relaxation

Toronto, Feb. 24.—(BUP)—The Ontario Liquor Board announced today that 1953 liquor permit books which go into circulation will be used for both 1953 and 1954.

A liquor Board official said the government wants to find out what the public thinks of the existing system before forming new policies and making any legislation. This research will not be completed before the end of the current session of the Legislature.

He said the government is studying the question of the sale of liquor, especially the question of the sale of liquor to the public.

Tragedy and Miraculous Escape Along Eastern Seaboard

Barbara Ann Russell, 19, of River Springs, Md., left, and Linda Kolbig, 18, of Washington, D.C., were the only survivors in a speedboat crash off Cobb Island, Md., which claimed the lives of five persons. They are hospitalized in a hospital where they were brought after their rescue. The 22-foot speedboat hit a sandbar in the Potomac River and was travelling so fast the bottom split open.

Despite this spectacular twin spill the drivers were not seriously injured. It happened on the second lap of the Grand National championship stock car race at Daytona Beach, Fla., when the drivers tangled and their cars flipped on the south turn of the beach-road course. Drivers were Buddy Kreis, of Hartford, Conn., and Jim Wilson, of Springfield, Ont. They were freed after hospital treatment.

BY LOUIS ARTHUR CUNNINGHAM

S TODD UP again, thought Maizie, when she sat the phone booth in the Carlton lobby after listening to another one of Pete Haddock's smooth crooner live many times to his, she asked herself, and realized suddenly that it didn't matter, that whatever number of times it might be, it was the last. Pete was not the type to settle down. But he had been good fun, and she thought a bit likely of the evening ahead.

She strolled over to the dinner shop. Maizie always bought herself a pretty when she felt depressed. One of Liz Kisker's lovely sporty ones.

Liz, plump and gray-haired, greeted her over the glass and chrome counter. "Hi, Maizie. What's the matter? Stood up again?"

She and Maizie were old friends. Maizie was the receptionist at the Alpine Hotel away up on the Cayman's roof. Maizie was little and dark and usually so happy that her friend could meet in a moment when things weren't right.

"You passed it, Liz. Time I got wise to myself. I need a lift. Let's see now, I think I'll buy—"

A voice that suggested blue ice cut in on them.

"So—so sorry to interrupt, but is there someone waiting on outside?"

"This was a blonde in a milk cap—one of these exquisite, mannequin gipsy white platinum froths that both Maizie and Liz were only too familiar with.

"Yes, madame. Liz gave her a glossy smile. "What else do I do for you?"

"Oh, I wondered if you worked here. Have you gone yellow now?"

"Sorry, madame. Not yellow now in the shop. The blonde's mouth tightened. "What a dangle! Is there a real florist's shop handy?"

"A shock down on the pavement, a black over on the sidewalk. Perhaps you'll have better luck."

The blonde was away, returning the eye crystals behind her.

"I'll bet not," thought Liz. "What a dangle! Is there a real florist's shop handy?"

"A shock down on the pavement, a black over on the sidewalk. Perhaps you'll have better luck."
